

Canadian School Counsellor

A magazine for Canada's High School Guidance Teacher-Counsellors

High school guidance teacher-counsellors are among the most influential figures in our secondary school system. Both advocate and advisor, today's counsellors not only assist students through a variety of issues, they help them make informed choices about their education and career goals that will ultimately shape the course of their young lives.

National Distribution: 3300 print and 10,000 electronic copies

Canadian School Counsellor is the only national magazine created specifically for high school guidance teacher-counsellors in Canada. The magazine is nationally distributed to all 3300 high schools across the country at key times during the school year; February, May, September and November.

Bilingual Content

We reach both English and French-speaking readers. In addition to our English content, every issue of Canadian School Counsellor has a French translation of our cover story and at least 2 other feature stories relevant to our French readership.

Targeted Readership

Our readership is 100% qualified. Each issue of both our print and electronic magazines are sent directly to our regularly updated list of School and Career Counsellors across Canada, ensuring your message is delivered to the intended audience in the place it has the most impact – right in their office.

News-stand Quality Design & Must-Read Content

Designed to inform and engage guidance teacher-counsellors, Canadian School Counsellor keeps them up to date on the latest developments in their field through one-to-one interviews with renowned experts, articles of interest on today's hot-button topics as well as shared ideas, strategies and real-life experiences from fellow counsellors. Our high-quality content is tailored to their professional needs. Between the covers of the magazine are engaging pages of topical information to keep guidance teacher-counsellors informed as they advise students regarding university requirements, study skills, post-secondary financial support and career development in addition to the latest developments in providing care and attention to youth coping with problems and transitions.

Maximum Value Exposure

Canadian School Counsellor magazine maximizes your advertising dollars as it is the only publication of its type that specifically targets High School and Career Counsellors in Canada. While other school counsellor magazines include in their circulation; elementary, middle and junior high schools, our magazine will be received exclusively by those professionals who directly council young people that are making decisions about career and post secondary education opportunities.

Environmentally Conscious

Canadian School Counsellor magazine is published using state of the art environmentally sound printing processes and prints on Forestry Stewardship Council (FSC) certified paper.

Testimonials

Here are some comments that we have received from School Counsellors and Advertisers regarding Canadian School Counsellor magazine.

Canadian School Counsellor Magazine is an excellent resource for all school counsellors. Articles on personal wellness, career information, and counselling strategies provide readers with an engaging, easy to read, and uniquely Canadian perspective on issues related to school counselling. I use this magazine as a supplementary resource in my graduate level counsellor preparation courses at The University of Winnipeg.

Jan Stewart, PhD., Faculty of Education
The University of Winnipeg

The magazine looks fantastic! I find the quality superb and look forward to reading all the interesting articles.

The Canadian School Counselor Magazine is an excellent resource for all teachers. The articles provide many tips and ideas to support students and staff. I recommend that all read it.

Janeen Ferriss, Head of Guidance, Moira Secondary School

Canadian School counsellor is one of the best professional magazines I've read in a long time. I am most impressed by the comprehensive selection of articles – there really is something for everyone from grief counselling to the effects of noise pollution. It has the kind of articles that we always seek regarding how to care for our students and then goes one or two steps further presenting us with thoughts about taking care of ourselves. Ideas are presented with clarity and humour...who knew a tidy desk is so important!

The magazine is also visually appealing while offering a variety of useful resources for both counsellors and students. I'm looking forward to the next issue.

Laura Leitch, Student Services and COOP Head

The articles in the magazine, Canadian School Counsellor are positive, uplifting and useful. From stories on role models (Susan Aglukark) to articles about teachers and community members helping youth become global citizens, there is something useful in here for teachers and students. I also like the advertising as well because the magazine highlights public and private schools and careers in areas that students are interested in. I have already shown students in my careers class some of the articles and schools advertised in your magazines such as " A Cut Above the Rest" and "The Stars Behind the Scenes". Thank you for sending us another copy. I will circulate it around our office as well as in my careers class. The stories are very positive. Thanks again.

I had a look at two of your issues last night and was impressed with the articles presented. Both the range of articles and the fact that they were easy to read and understand makes it a valuable tool for all who are counselling students.
